The King Jehoshaphat Strategy of Praise and Worship

In the story of King Jehoshaphat, Judah was surrounded on all sides by their enemies. The odds against them were without a doubt overwhelming. What lie before King Jehoshaphat was impossible to figure out by human strategy, but he had something that could not be explained or measured in this realm—he had God on his side.

The activity of praise acknowledges our surrender to God and His authority to overcome this world. It is not in our power, nor our control, to overcome the things of this world. IT IS in our power to turn and surrender control to the One who is in control through praise and worship. While praise is part of the act of worship, worship is all encompassing surrender to the very source of life itself – I AM! (Exodus 3:14)

The more we surrender our thoughts, our control, our understanding in worship the more the light of God fills our being and draws us closer to the Glory of God – the realm of the miraculous.
